Summary of reasons for decision:

The computer image file printout is objectionable because it promotes and supports the exploitation of children and young persons for sexual purposes and promotes and supports bestiality.

The printout contains a montage of 16 small colour images in various formats that primarily depict sexual activity involving children and young persons. The publication can have no other purpose than the sexual arousal of adults with a prurient interest in children and young persons. It encourages adults to view children and young persons as sexually desirable and available for adult sexual gratification. It legitimises a sexual interest in children and young persons and encourages their sexual exploitation. The publication also promotes and supports bestiality and serves to legitmise and encourage the view that animals are appropriate subjects for sexual gratification.

The classification of this publication interferes with the freedom of expression as set out in the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990. However, this is an outcome that is consistent with Parliament's intention that publications that fall under the criteria of s3(2) of the Films, Videos, and Publications Classification Act 1993 will be deemed objectionable. The classification is a reasonable and demonstrably justified limitation on the freedom of expression that reflects the concern of a free and democratic society to protect vulnerable children and young persons from exploitation, and to limit the availability of publications that encourage bestiality.
